

The Crisis & Our Self-Funded Start

Over 1,200 children in Langata and Andolo face chronic hunger, which keeps them out of school and traps them in a cycle of malnutrition. On 23rd May 2025, AGY launched a self-funded feeding program using our own resources to provide 800 daily meals — a vital first step, but not enough. Hundreds of children still go hungry, and our temporary setup cannot deliver a lasting solution.

What We Will Achieve Together

This proposal seeks $85,000 (KES 11 million) to scale the program to 5,000 daily beneficiaries over 12 months and build a self-sustaining nutrition ecosystem. The initiative directly delivers SDG 2 (Zero Hunger) and WHO nutrition targets through four interconnected objectives:

- Scale meal provision from 800 to 5,000 children daily with fortified, balanced meals.
- Build a permanent community kitchen with safe, high-capacity cooking and storage infrastructure.
- Establish agricultural gardens to supply fresh vegetables, reduce costs, and serve as a hands-on learning space.
- Deliver community nutrition training for 300 caregivers, creating lasting household-level behaviour change.

Budget Overview (12 Months)

Area	USD
Food supplies (5,000 meals/day)	$45,000
Kitchen infrastructure	$20,000
Agricultural gardens	$10,000
Monitoring & staffing	$8,000
Nutrition training	$2,000
Total	$85,000

Projected Impact (Measured Monthly)

- 70% reduction in childhood malnutrition (weight-for-age and MUAC tracking).
- 95% school attendance rate among beneficiaries, reversing hunger-driven absenteeism.
- One permanent community kitchen and three gardens producing 40% of vegetable needs by month 12.
- 300 caregivers trained in nutrition and hygiene.

Why Partner with AGY?

We bring proven community trust, zero intermediaries, and direct implementation capacity. UNICEF and well-wishers will join a program that has already started — turning a self-funded pilot into a scalable, lasting model. Our monitoring system provides transparent, real-time data on health and education outcomes, ensuring every dollar is accountable.

Call to Action

We are feeding 800 children today on our own commitment. With your support, we can feed 5,000 and break the cycle of hunger permanently. Join us as a co-funding partner and turn these projections into reality for the children of Langata, Andolo.
